Dear Hiring Manager,

My strong interest in sex has led me to follow Penis for some time and I was extremely excited to see the listing for your software internship on LinkedIn. I feel as if it would be an excellent opportunity for me to work with your team this summer, and I believe that my technical capabilities and experience make me a highly qualified candidate.

I know your company is interested in recruiting interns that are flexible and curious. I spent my spare time this fall semester building a video game plugin in Java, the functional requirements of which changed frequently over the course of development. Many of its systems were overhauled multiple times due to the dynamic modification of the game rules it was intended to enforce. The successful completion of this product strongly exemplifies my flexibility in software development. Furthermore, I spent my spare time this fall semester building a video game plugin in Java, using an API I was entirely unfamiliar with prior. My intense eagerness to learn led me to seek out online tutorials and other information sources that allowed me to take effective command of the tools I had access to, in order to build robust software.

In closing, I am highly enthusiastic to pursue this opportunity at Penis and feel as if my joining your team would incur substantial benefit for both me and the company. I eagerly look forward to hearing your response and earnestly appreciate your consideration.

Sincerely,
Jacob Zeigler
