Dear Hiring Manager,

My strong interest in rimjobs has led me to follow SexPenis for some time and I was extremely excited to see the listing for your software internship on LinkedIn. I feel as if it would be an excellent opportunity for me to work with your team this summer, and I believe that my technical capabilities and experience make me a highly qualified candidate.

I know your company is interested in recruiting interns that are open to learning new skills and curious. This cover letter was automatically generated using a program I created that employs HTML processing mechanisms I was wholly unfamiliar with prior to starting the project. I was able to seek out appropriate tutorials and information sources online to help me make use of the tools available to me. Furthermore, I spent my spare time this fall semester building a video game plugin in Java, using an API I was entirely unfamiliar with prior. My intense eagerness to learn led me to seek out online tutorials and other information sources that allowed me to take effective command of the tools I had access to, in order to build robust software. As you'll note in my attached resume, I also have a great deal of experience communicating and working collaboratively in a small-group environment, something I recognize your team values deeply.

In closing, I am highly enthusiastic to pursue this opportunity at SexPenis and feel as if my joining your team would incur substantial benefit for both me and the company. I eagerly look forward to hearing your response and earnestly appreciate your consideration.

Sincerely,
Jacob Zeigler
